TO THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF THE GRADUATING CLASS OF JUNE, 1952:

Your choice of the theme, The Theatre, indicates a sphere of interest that is natural for all intellectually alive young people. There is no area of stimulation to the imagination and the emotions that retains its appeal as constantly as does the world of the stage.

Those of us who grew up in the pre-radio and television days experienced this range of sensations without the dilution of ersatz-versions, if we except the feeble competition of the silent motion picture. I hope that for you, too, the achievements of a great American theatre remain a continuing source of pleasure and inspiration.

The familiar parallel of life and the stage has been pointed up too effectively by great writers, notably by Shakespeare in "Hamlet" and "As You Like It," for me to attempt to repeat it. Let me only add that it is possible, to apply the parlance of colloquial criticism, to "ham up" one's life as thoroughly as one's acting. In both spheres, sincerity and directness are productive of true accomplishment.

Sincerely yours,

MAX NEWFIELD

Curtain going up!

You've been rehearsing for three and a half or four years. The faculty has been directing, doing lots of coaching, and even worrying about the production.

Now you're stepping out on the stage itself. We must leave the wings and go down into the audience.

One last bit of prompting: Be your own critic. Perform so that you will take pride in your achievements. The world needs your best efforts. Poor old world! There are a lot of bad actors around.

Go on out and make it a good show. We'll be applauding, you may be sure, because we've grown so very fond of you. We have confidence in the fact that your ideals and principles are not for matinees only.

Our congratulations and best wishes for many, many successes. Happy days!

TO OUR DIRECTORS

DEAR GRADE ADVISORS:

The house lights dim and the cast appears smiling and bowing behind the footlights. The audience on its feet applauds a success. . . .

The success was not accidental. It came as a result of four years of earnest rehearsing and preparation, under the direction of Mrs. Nurnberg and Mr. Posner whose confidence in our ability to achieve and whose patience in guiding us have led inevitably to this triumph. You have incited within us a feeling of overwhelming pride and strength and thus you have made it possible for us to work and live together.

Without your experience and foresight which helped us avoid pitfalls which otherwise might have proved disastrous, without your ability to search out and direct our talents we might not have reached this goal.

If "Oscars" are to be handed out you shall certainly have a share in any we might win.

THE CLASS OF JUNE 1952

THE THEATRE

As we turn the pages of our script and the years begin to unfold before us, the images of our past experiences are magnified in a lucid pool of life.

We are amateurs preparing for our first leading roles. We have spent many years rehearsing for our debuts and now the moment of greatness is upon us.

All of Madison is a stage and all the students players, as they make their exits and entrances from the constant present to the unknown future. We have learned our parts so that we may be able to face our audience more courageously. We have tried!! Thus, there is no darkness, no ignorance in our production.

Some actors are born with knowledge; some achieve it, and some have this knowledge thrust upon them. For some this has been a comedy of errors; for others merely a stepping stone into deeper fields of education. We must realize and be aware that, if we have done well in the past, we can also do well in the future, for wisdom is acquired with experience.

As the dramatist pens his picture with words, so does the teacher prepare us for another phase in this drama of life.

Throughout the years we have toiled and spun, and now through our directors' efforts, we are one step closer to our goal. As student players we are filled with an urgent sense of having to carry out our teachers' and parents' hopes for us. As actors upon a stage of life we feel it is our humble duty to enact our parts in a fitting and gracious manner.

Whoever acquires knowledge and fails to use it, must eventually suffer and shall be forever banished from this stage. Knowledge is our strength and we must budget it wisely, for only as far as a candle glows shall its beam be cast.

As the curtain falls and our production draws to a close, we leave you with this parting thought . . .

... "Take pains, be perfect —
Adieu."

A COMEDY IN FOUR ACTS

"THROUGH THE YEARS"

ACT 1 — FRESHMEN

Five minutes to curtain time. We received these words with mixed emotions. For eight years we had prepared for our debut, yet some of us were still petrified by the thought of the glaring footlights. Others eagerly awaited entrance into this world of glamour and greasepaint. As the theater lights slowly dimmed, a hush descended over the throngs of critics. The black and gold curtain slowly rose and we got our first glimpse of the audience. It was a frightening sight. People with black and gold hats with leathers growing out of them were glaring at us. But as we got to know this new strain of man named "seniors," we liked them very much for they were very helpful. We never would have been able to buy gold plated gym spots, our own table in the lunch room or the toll rights to the marble staircase without their assistance.

"You must have Patience" was the watchword backstage and so we saw Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "Patience."

Before long we proved that we were not amateurs by our performance in the sing. Some of us appeared in the act entitled "Showboat" while others starred in the presentation of "Madison as a Girls' School."

Field day was another memorable occasion. A Student-Faculty Baseball game replaced Math and a 100-yard dash took the place of English. (Ah, the good old days.) After the sports events, Coney Island came to Madison in the form of a gala Carnival.

The Madison-Midwood Hop, the Snow Ball and Football Frolics kept up the festivities.

Before we knew it, the walls were covered with pictures of identical twins, and we scurried to the eye doctor to see if we needed specs. However, he assured us it was a local phenomenon and we returned to school to see Shaw's "You Never Can Tell."

Will you ever forget the day we were legally excused from school to go to a Dodger ball game? (Miracles do happen.) There was a method to their madness. Some financial genius added a ticket to a free ball game at Ebbets Field to the ticket that admitted you to the school games. Everyone bought a ticket, but the school team never had an audience, only money. Who could ask for anything more?

And so summer quickly arrived and we eagerly departed for summer stock, impatiently awaiting the commencement of act II.

ACT 2 — SOPHOMORES

After a two-month intermission we returned from the Borscht Circuit older, wiser and blonder, ready to start a very exciting act. This year marked the silver jubilee of Madison and a gala celebration was in order. First on the agenda was the Mardi Gras.

Those were the good old days. Everyone who had a ticket was excused from school to see the first football game of the season. Who wouldn't invest 50c to get out of school? The game was between Madison and Midwood. Of course, Madison won. An amazing feat was accomplished that season — Lincoln was finally defeated after thirteen years of unsuccessful trying.

Sorrow also crept in when Lenny Seidman sacrificed his life to save a fellow student. As a tribute to this heroic deed, the Leonard Seidman Award for Sportsmanship was created.

We were very proud of our school when the "Highway" won a first place rating from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Then on April 19 we see a mob scene which outranks anything that Hollywood has done, or ever hopes to do. The setting is in front of City Hall. The characters are thousands of agitated (that is an understatement) students from the city high schools. A vociferous cry rises from the hoarse throats of the throng. "We want Bill." Bill was Mayor O'Dwyer. Why is this scene part of the show? They are protesting the stoppage of extra-curricular activities by the faculty. However the demonstration was of no avail. And so all the plans we had made for our anniversary celebration were stored in the file: "What Might Have Been But Wasn't."

Particularly outstanding were the assembly programs. Marty Glickman, famous sportscaster and Madison alumnus, amused us greatly with stories about Madison when it first began. We were greatly honored by the presence of Jose Ferrer, who entertained us by reciting the famous passage in which Cyrano de Bergerac describes his nose.

There was one bright light in this dark atmosphere. It was daylight. You see we were finally A.M.ers.

And so a very promising act came to a very disappointing end.

ACT 3 — JUNIORS

As the curtain slowly parted we were still just an institution of learning. But a faint glimmer of light appeared in the darkness and soon the light was blinding. Extra-curricular activities had returned. The teachers had "made up" with the Board of Education. There was a huge uplift in the morale of the students. We worked like beavers reorganizing the suspended activities.

Madison marches home. Our march home from Tilden High School to celebrate the victorious completion of our first football game will long be remembered. The team had a great season, especially in comparison with previous years. Coach Caruso became a hero.

Students stepped lively at the first dance since the activity ban was lifted. It was the long awaited Mardi Gras. Of course it was a huge success.

Soon the air was filled with music. We were getting ready for the biggest and best sing we ever had. Some of us were in the act which was a take-off on Sears and Roebuck while others were in an act about the army, Camp Madison. A note of sadness crept into the show however when the Sophs won the sing. But as the Dodgers say, "Wait 'til next year."

Suddenly Madison went literary, especially the female portion. The sale of comic books fell off 32%. What caused this phenomenon? Mr. Rodman, of course. He was the faculty advisor of the "Madisonian." With the theme of "Youth" this magazine was an outstanding publication.

About this time nine of our outstanding students were missing. We couldn't find them anywhere. We even tried the Lost and Found. They had won Ford Foundation Scholarships and had left us to go to halls of higher learning.

Everyone hoped to get one of the new young teachers before we graduated. Did we have luck. Most of these teachers had to leave due to the lack of students. We only had a mere five thousand. Some young teachers did remain, so all hope did not die.

And so before we knew it our junior year had ended. An air of new dignity was acquired as we suddenly realized that we were going to become that rare and sought after strain of human being known as "SENIOR"

ACT 4 — SENIORS

Once again the curtain is drawn. Before us we see a long line of haggard and aged people on whose countenances once shone the freshness of youth. This isn't a bread line in front of the Salvation Army; it's those souls who are still waiting to see the all wise and most revered Mr. Tobin.

Champions! This word was on the lips of all of us. We had a champion basketball team. Will you ever forget the excitement at the Madison-Midwood basketball game (the one we won) which went into overtime? Silence prevailed for the next three days. We had lost our voices. There was a general rejoicing among the faculty. They finally had the silent days they dreamt of. To honor the team we had a Basket Ball.

Soon we see the actors marching around with feathers growing out of their heads. The bio department didn't have a mutation, the seniors had their Senior Hats.

Broadway came to us also in the form of "Pygmalion" and the Junior Show. The Spring concert rivaled those at Town Hall. We had the good fortune of hearing Grieg's Piano Concerto.

Oh how I hate to get up in the morning — especially Wednesday, for I have to get up early. What could cause such a unique occurrence. Only one thing, the scholarship lectures. It really wasn't the lectures but the thought of all the money we were going to win. Then March arrived, March 5 and 6 to be exact, and all illusion of wealth fled quickly, for we had taken the exam.

Remember the day the police came to Madison because they were informed that communist rallies were being held in these hallowed halls? Were their faces red when they found out we were only having Red Letter Day.

She shook hands with the President. These words spread like wildfire. We had a celebrity in our midst. Who was this sensation? Judy Shimansky, winner of the Westinghouse Scholarship, shook hands with President Truman.

And so we realized that the show was almost over. We were sorry. They say that once you get show business in your blood it stays with you forever. The only thing that was left was the invention of a sadist, "Regents." If we didn't pass them we were left.

With tears in our eyes we watched the final curtain fall. The deafening applause assured us that our performance would be long remembered. We had won our "Oscar."

Judy Klein

SENIOR PROBLEMS(?)

Ah wonderful exhilarating sensation! Oh celestial thought! Slowly we let the word glide o'er our tongues: See-nior. We turned up the brim of our black and gold hats and simonized our pins to insure their conspicuousness. Oh yes, we were all so happy for a while; then we found out . . .

It was a plot . . . nothing but a conspiracy to wheedle us out of everything. They gave us free pins and trusted that this bit of nothing would compensate for what was to come!

After dishing out money for S.G.O., Student Aid Fund, senior hats and prom tickets, we were requested to donate nearly six dollars for Senior Dues. That's when we sold our pins to frosh.

Then we started to worry about the prom, and those without possible escorts in view went about their daily work to the tune of "A Hunting We Will Go."

There were decisions to be made. College acceptances and rejections flowed freely. Both elated and lugubrious faces were seen 'neath the brims of those black and gold caps.

Tryouts for the Log, planning and writing the Senior Show, and nominating class officers and celebrities all offered their minor difficulties.

The paramount problem was that offered by the insecurity of the world. As gay and carefree as we seemed in our senior year, there prevailed always in our minds the thought that soon we would be the ones to feel most strongly the effects of an uncertain international situation.

When graduation day came this was the only problem left. We had made plans for a normal future. We dared to hope we could fulfill them in a free world.

Can we?

IF YOU WANT A RECEIPT

If you want a recipe for that rarely known mystery
Known to this school as a GREAT SENIOR MIND
Delve into psychology, Freud and his history
Read all his books you can possibly find.
You must learn all the complexes backwards and forwards and
Know how your thoughts are related to sex
And after you've read all his works you will find that
A Freudian complex is very complex.

You must learn of Socrates and Aristotle and
All of those gents who so wisely did speak
Of life and of loving, of eating and drinking and
All of those things that are typically Greek.

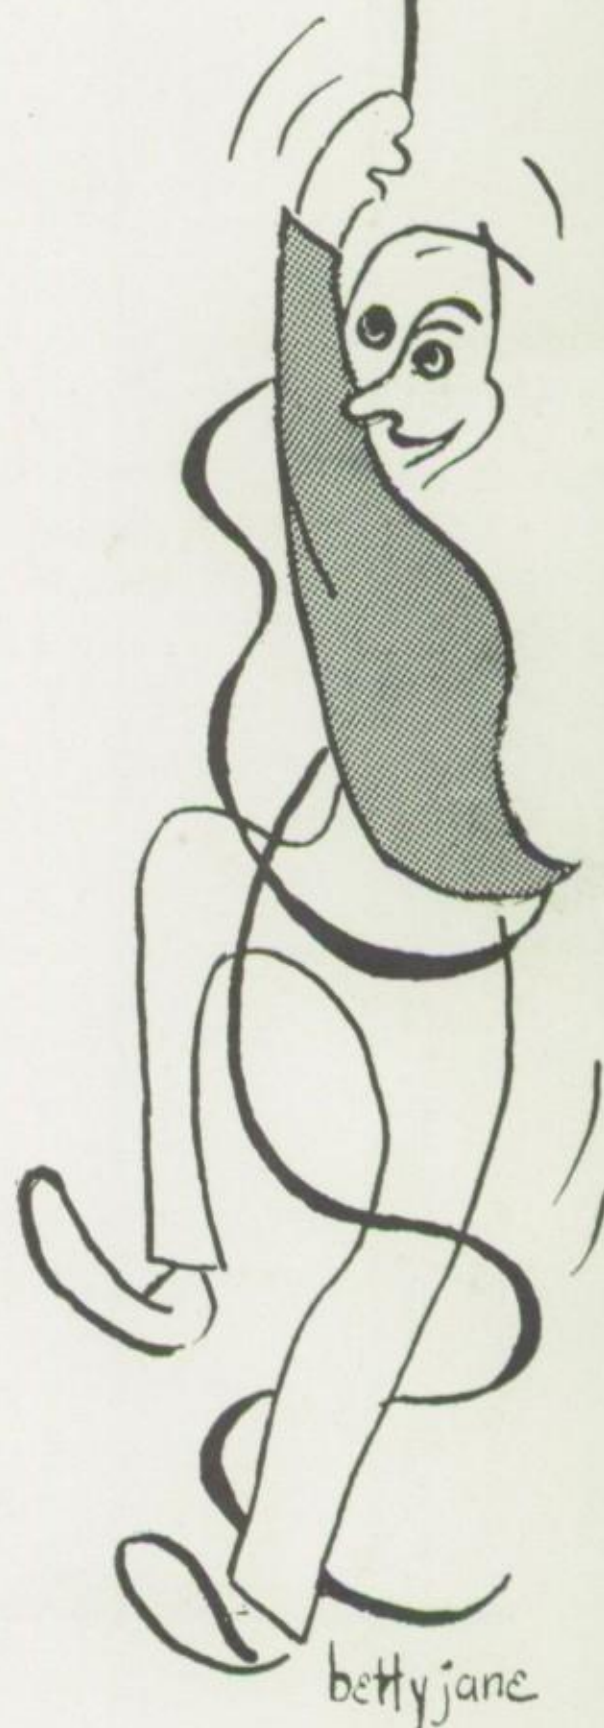

You must learn three languages and speak them fluently
Latin and German and ancient Chinese.
You must know by memory all the great works
That the many great writers have written in these.

You've got to love music of all types whatever
And listen to anything that is at hand
Beethoven, Wagner, Tchaikowsky and Mendelsohnn
"Rended" for you by the Madison Band.

You must know all art though you think it's a mockery
Paintings and sculptures and Mexican Crockery
Know all the painters and know all the names of them
Learn their life stories and learn all the shames of them.
Rembrandt, Picasso and Vincent Van Gogh
Augustus Rodin and Davidson, Jo.

Take of these many hints all that are usable
If you can't use one it's very excusable
Roll them around in your skull and you'll find
You have acquired a senior's mind.

IN THE WINGS

"ARISTA"

Arista was first organized in our school in 1925 by Miss Corinne Jewel. Since then Mr. Blumstein, Miss Hansberry and, at present, Miss Taleisnik have been Arista's advisors. Arista has grown with the school and become an integral part of it. Since the stoppage of extra-curricular activities, we have discontinued the system of having Arista applicants interviewed by the Arista Assembly. As a result, the averages for eligibility have been raised to 95 in 5th term and 90 thereafter. In addition to scholastic standing, Arista members must render service to the school.

This term our Boy Leader is Marty Brownstein; our Girl Leader is Sue Chasin and our Secretary is Judith Shimansky.

In the present graduating class there are about 100 Arista members.

THE S.G.O.

The Student Government Organization of Madison is a fine example of democratic government. Like the United States government, the S.G.O. is divided into three bodies. These are the Executive, Legislative, and Judicial branches.

The Executive branch consists of the President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer, who are elected each term by the student body.

The President may choose a cabinet of fifteen commissioners, to aid him during his administration. One of his most important jobs is to serve as Chairman of the House of Representatives.

The Vice President heads the Senate, which is responsible for planning after-school activities.

The Senate and the House of Representatives comprise the Legislative branch of the S.G.O. The members of the House and Senate are elected by each class and represent the students at meetings.

The Secretary keeps minutes at House and other meetings of the S.G.O. The Weekly Calendar, House agenda and all S.G.O. correspondence are the Secretary's responsibility.

The Treasurer works with the S.G.O. Faculty Treasurer and serves as authority on the budget and any financial problems that may arise.

The Judicial branch of our government consists of Lt. Governors and Lt. Justices who are elected by each term of students. They make up the Board of Governors and Student Court.

Representatives of the S.G.O. attend Borough meetings of the Student Organization of Brooklyn and report back to the students.

This term the students elected to the executive offices are: Billy Gurton, President; Marty Rosenthal, Vice President; Lea Miller, Secretary; and Bob Erichson, Treasurer.

THE HIGHWAY

From green frosh to sophisticated senior, the Madison Highway has always afforded you a complete account of doings and "undoings" around Madison. It has told the entire story of the events that shaped your high school career. Varsity shows, Sings, sports, S.G.O. functions, and even classroom "boners" are included. Many who are in the class of '52 have worked on its pages since they avoided paying for their first subscription four years ago. Carol Davis, Joy Cohen, and Bob Smith were among the illusioned enthusiasts who wrote the P.M. Journal. They never realized that no one ever reads it.

This term, Bob Haselkorn, editor emeritus, and Mal Newman, ex-news editor, leaned back in their swivel chairs and watched their successors slave. Joel Dropkin.

Abby Avin, and Ralph Shapiro headed the staff with Lee Sachnoff, Mimi Fishman, and Stan Engerman as their page editors. Together with Mrs. Whitlock, charming faculty advisor, they recorded for you the events of the term which was the happiest, yet the saddest, of your high school days.

Now, they too are going out to face the world as individuals. Who knows? Perhaps the New York Times will some day profit by their Highway experiences!

MADISONIAN

In 1925, a band of intellectuals (and there were very few, even then) got together to incite confusion throughout an innocent student body. Their product was known as the "Highwayman". About 10 years later, it was changed to the "Madisonian", so as not to be confused with a certain "low-brow" paper, no doubt.

The stories printed are witty, dramatic, romantic, and understandable to the editors and approximately half the staff. They are supplemented by illustrations that make Picasso seem like an old master.

Faculty advisor to this erudite publication is Mr. Roddman, possessor of a wide literary background. Editor-in-Chief Stuart Becker and Art Editor Claire Satin can always be found in a library, usually near a copy of "Invent New Words and Forget Old Grammar".

SERVICE LEAGUE

At one time or another, all students have been stopped at an exit by a harmless looking guard, blocking the door. When he asks for your pass, you think to yourself, "I'm a citizen. My father is a taxpayer. Why do I need a pass?" You then realize that in a school of this size certain rules must be made and kept.

It is the job of our Service League to see that these regulations are upheld. The Service League, which was originally called the Traffic Squad, has been in existence since Madison was built.

Mr. Sarney is the very able faculty advisor. However, the part the faculty plays is small, since Mr. Sarney believes that the Service League offers an excellent opportunity for students to gain practical knowledge of government.

Besides Mr. Sarney, there is a Captain, two Lt. Captains, a Deputy Captain, and a Secretary of the head of the League. The officers this term are: Major, Karl Lazarowitz; and Lieutenant Major, Ronnie Zeigler.

All members of the squad can be easily recognized by the black and gold pins they wear. Officers have pins which have their rank written on it.

GO-GETTERS

Among the familiar and popular groups seen in the halls of Madison are the Go-Getters. Fifty-seven stalwart Madisonians comprise this group. Their prime function is to sell tickets for all of the school's athletic events. Among their other activities they hold dances and swims.

Because of the stoppage of extra-curricular activities, Go-Getters, as well as other school organizations, became extinct. At the resumption, mass interviews were held by the four school officers and Mr. Krinsky, head of Go-Getters and custodian of ticket distribution. Seven hundred students attended, and out of this number, the present membership was picked.

Present officers are Mike Weinberger, President; Ronnie Cooperman, Vice President; Ruth Posen, Secretary; and Rose Gregory, Treasurer.

THE BOOSTER SOCIETY

A prominent organization in Madison, devoted to the modeling of white sweaters, is the Booster Society, functioning since 1925.

Under the capable direction of Miss Horne, the Boosters proudly strut through our halls, laughing at all non-members. The reason responsible for this club's existence originally was to sell tickets to school activities; but with the rise of Go-Getters, it was transformed into a collection agency for money and clothing for charity. It is apparent that most members have contributed their "all" to the clothing collection, as they are never seen in anything but dirty white sweaters. Since the sweater collection has dwindled the Boosters have now taken the form of the spokes of a big wheel. The chief spokes are: Pres., Gene Sommer; Veep., Richard Chasin; Secy., Adrienne Schumitsky; and Treas., Sue Chasin.

CHEERLEADER SOCIETY

Organized in 1929, the Cheerleader Society was composed only of boys or a reasonable facsimile thereof. In 1940, however, they took some wit up on his dare that they couldn't lift a Madison girl, and since then the females have been admitted to the organization. They are seen at all Madison sport events, well equipped with liniment, gargle, and a derrick per girl. Heading this liniment lineup are Cpts. Saul Sturman and Gladys Elias.

TWIRLERS

The "Twirlers" organization is the youngest school club. The club consists of about thirteen girls whose faculty advisor is Mr. Barnett. The girls twirl only at football games where they march around the field with the band during the half time and exhibit their twirling. This past football season introduced the twirlers doing a new routine. Their captain is Carol Wolfman.

NEW CLUBS

This term, for the first time since the end of the ban on extra-curricular activity, Madison is going to have clubs. The commissioners of clubs are Marty Brownstein and Steve Goldfinger. Steve says that the response of the Madison students to the clubs has been very heartening and that the clubs are accomplishing everything that was expected of them.

One of the main reasons why the clubs were started again was to increase the school spirit. So far the clubs have been 100% successful in this respect.

The most important of these clubs, in the eyes of the commissioners, is the Service Club. It is meant to be a parallel to Arista in the field of Service. The sole basis for selection for this club is service credit. The applicant must have one hundred points a term for the two preceding terms. There are no interviews!

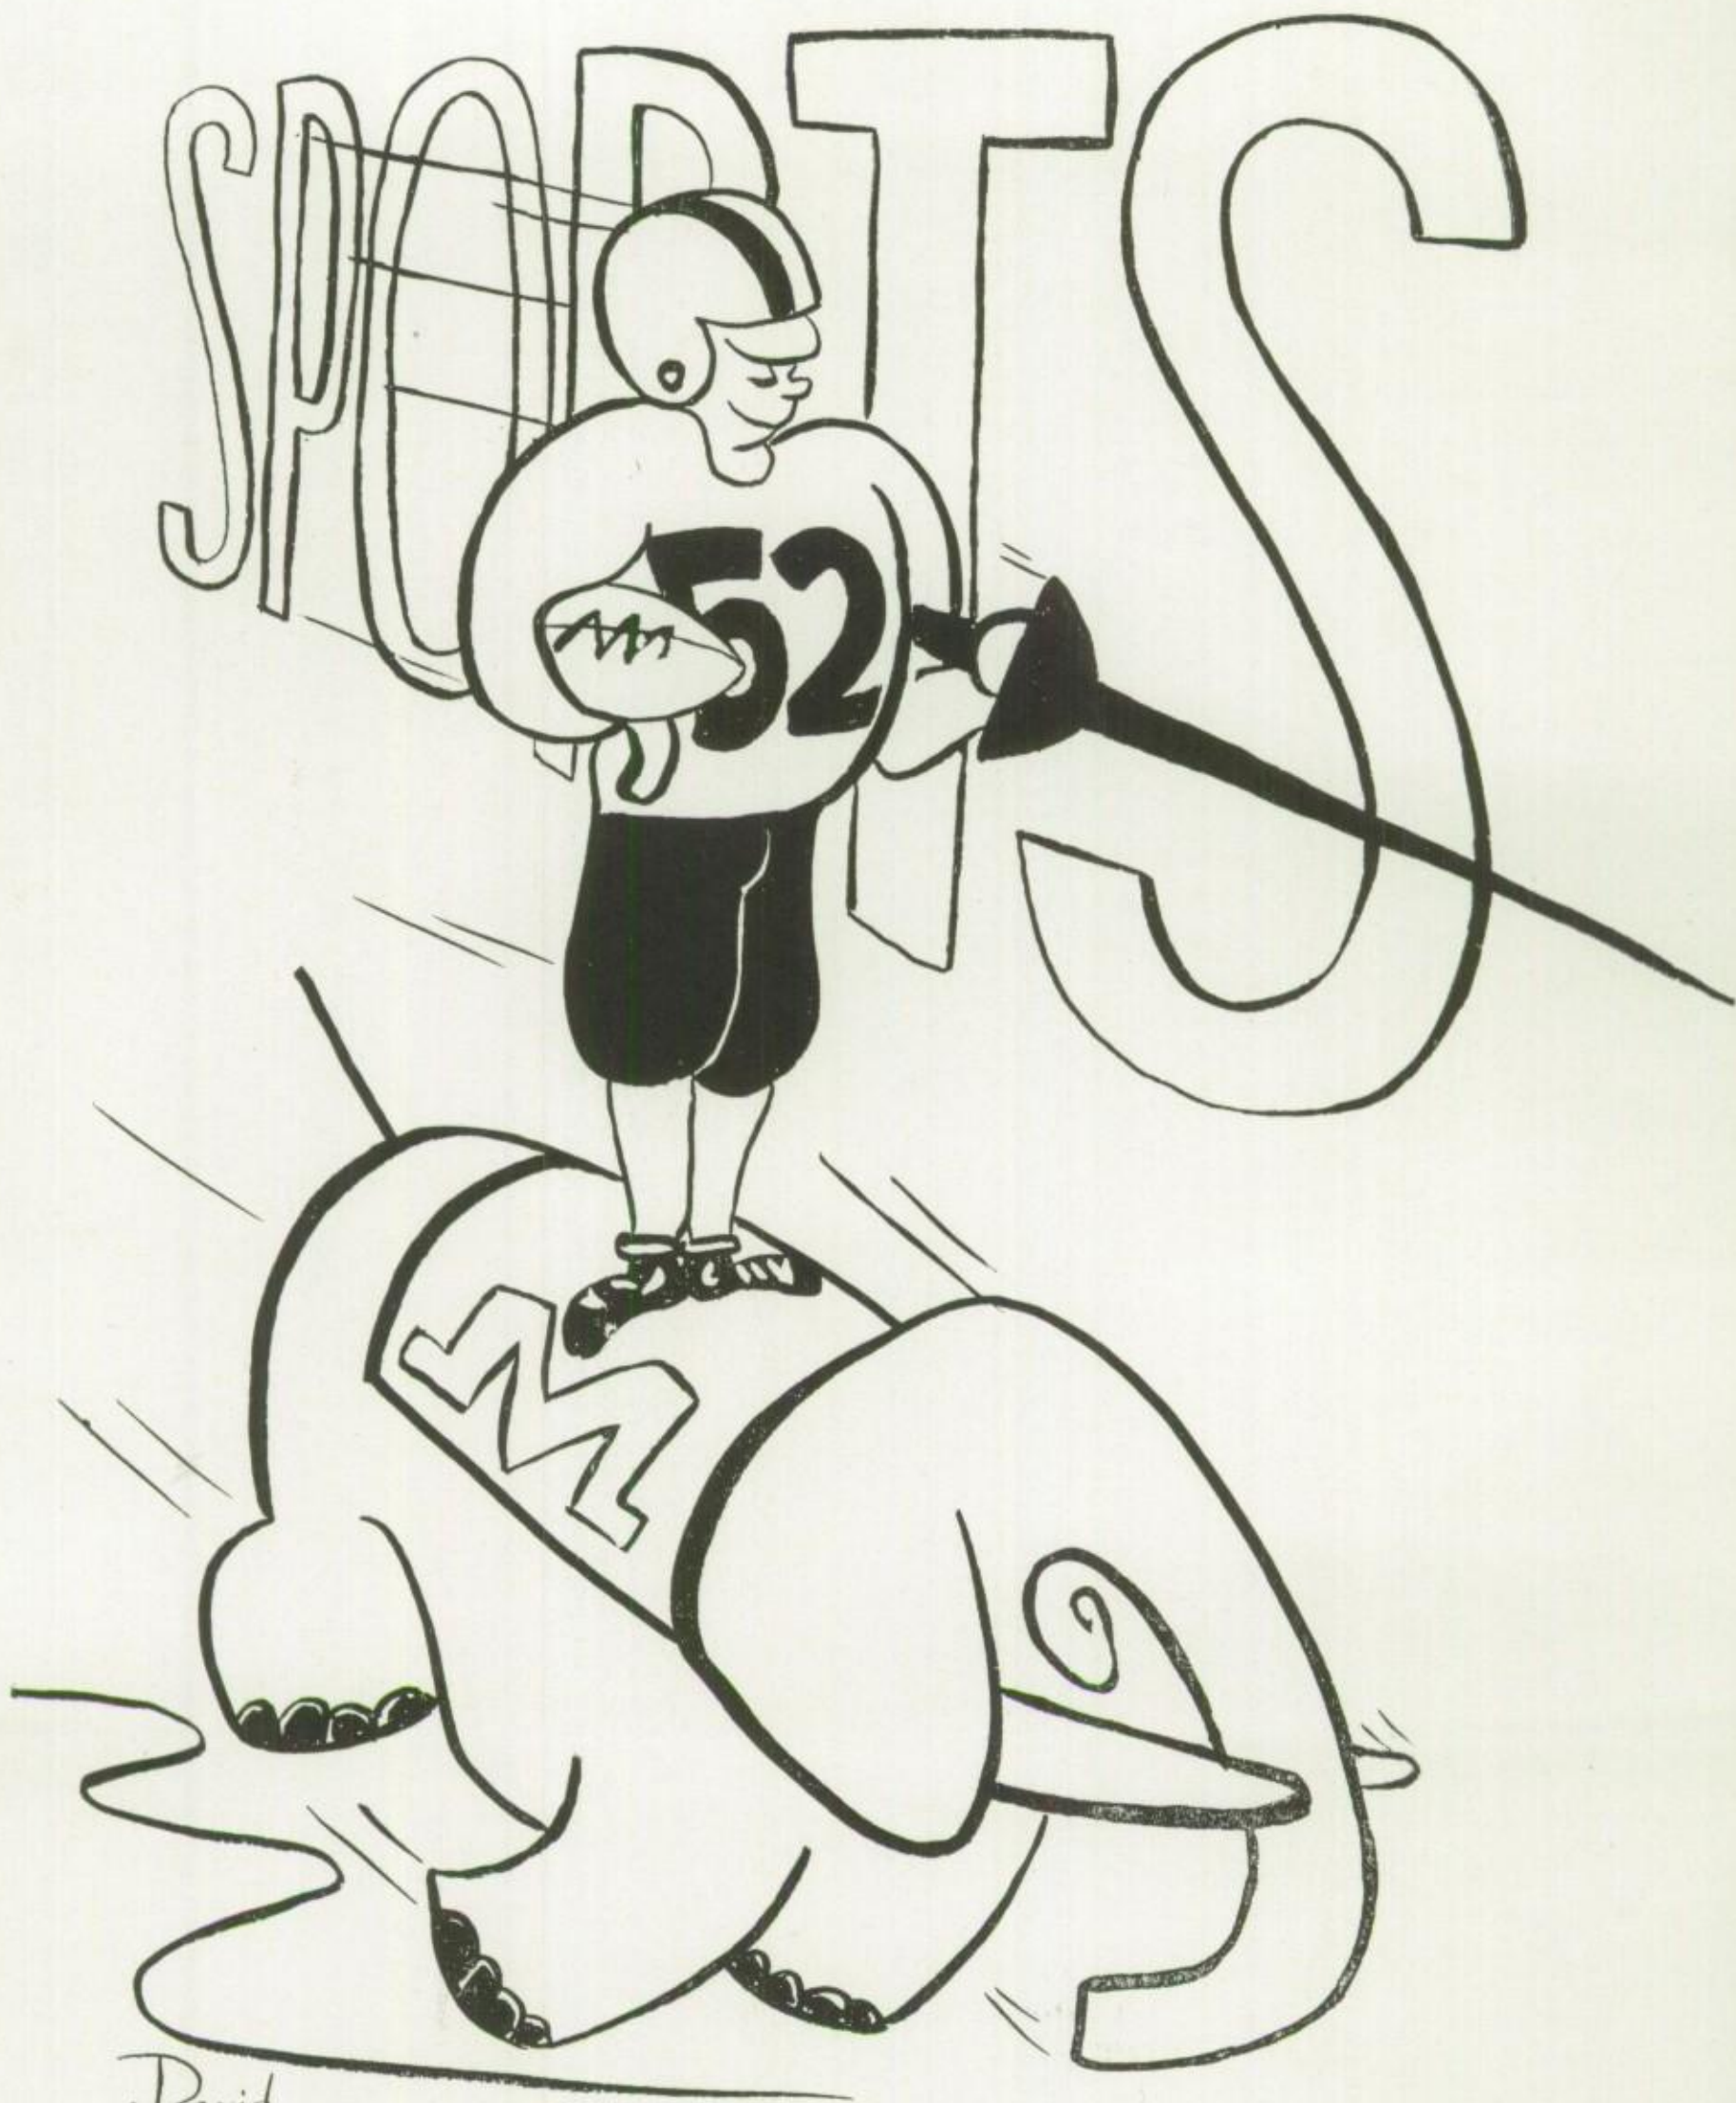

The members of the Service Club will not be allowed to rest on their laurels, however. They will be put to work finding services for P.M.ers and acting as ushers at graduations, shows, and P.T.A. meetings. They will also have to keep up a good record of service in order to remain in the club.

The club is open to all Madison students from Sophomores to Seniors. The only reason why Freshmen are not admitted is because they can't have one hundred points for their two previous terms. Nobody holding an important elective position in any school organization will be allowed to hold office in the Service Club, however.

Other clubs are the Golf Club, the Arts and Crafts Club, the Junior Red Cross, the Chess and Checker Club, the Bike Club, the Rifle Club, the Photography Club, the Dancing Club and the Gym Club, the Debating Club, and the Dramatic Club. There is also a club for each of the foreign languages taught in the school and a Football Club which is to be merged with the football team.

INTRODUCTION

Another four years in the glorious history of James Madison has unfolded. With it has gone many great memories. Some of the most wonderful have been recorded in the field of sports.

Long will we remember the figure of Frank Torre — one of Madison's greatest baseball players, pitching no-hit ball . . . and the tremendous roar that greeted the final buzzer of the Far Rockaway grid game, with the scoreboard telling of the great upset, MADISON 25; FAR ROCKAWAY 20.

Who can forget Captain Fred Lane, at the Basketball Dance, introducing the Madison basketball team, division champions, or the baby-faced star of the hoopsters, Frankie King?

Yes, the past four years have certainly been great ones in Black and Gold athletics. Win, lose or draw, James Madison is and always will be a name to respect.

MADISON BASKETBALL

1951-52 was a season in which basketball highlighted the sports scene as Madison copped the Brooklyn P.S.A.L. Division II crown. Led by its sensational scoring ace, Frankie King, Madison ran up a string of 14 consecutive victories to earn a playoff position in the borough eliminations. Although beaten by Boys High, the Black and Gold nevertheless proved itself to be one of the finest aggregations ever assembled by Coach Jammy Moskowitz. A will to win combined with fiery hustle and aggressiveness enabled Madison to provide the school with its first championship team since the 1943 season. This was not a team composed of individual ball-players; it was a well-balanced, closely knit unit concerned mainly with team victory, not individual glory.

Jammy Moskowitz's five featured a blazing fast break on offense, backed up by a sterling defense, limiting opposition to a scant 44.6 points a game. This proved to be the best defensive record in Division II competition. In addition, Madison ranked third in team scoring with an average of 54.3 points per ball game.

Frankie King broke all existing Madison scoring records as he rolled up a total of 260 points in P.S.A.L. competition while also producing a record breaking 30 points in one ball game. Quite a feat for a 15 year old sophomore.

Backing up King in the scoring department were Roy Kieval with 129 points, Fred Lane with 126, and Milt Winawer with 110. This combination, along with King, was one of the most dangerous offensive units in the league.

Greatly contributing to the effectiveness of the team were four seniors, of whom we can well be proud: Fred Lane, Johnny Graziadei, Stu Sperling, and Donald Bender.

FOOTBALL TEAM

In 1948 Al Caruso, one of Madison's all time greats, took over as head football coach. This year marks the end of his coaching career at Madison, and taking over next year's team will be Mike and Sam Torgan. Sam was assistant coach under Al Caruso while his father coached Madison's best teams of past years. Under Mike Torgan, Madison produced some of the greatest football stars ever to play in New York City. Together this fine father and son combination should once again bring back the championship to Madison and help establish the Golden Tornado as one of the big football threats in the city.

Madison began its 1948 season by crushing a weak Midwood team 19-6 at the Brooklyn College Field. The next game saw Madison lose to a good Erasmus squad, 13-7. In the first night game in ten years at Ebbets Field, Madison lost its second straight game to Brooklyn Tech 20-6. The next two games with Tilden and New Utrecht both resulted in ties. Madison's record for the 1948 season was one win, five defeats, and two ties.

In 1949, Madison once again began its season by defeating Midwood, this time 12-6. In the next game, for the second straight year, Madison and New Utrecht finished the game in a tie. In the game with Erasmus (then the Borough Champs) the Madison eleven played its best game of the season but still ended upon the wrong end of an 18-7 score. After this exciting game with Erasmus, Madison bounced right back with a 6-0 win over Tilden at Madison Field. Following this win the Quentin Roaders seemed to fall apart and finished up the season by losing three straight games to Brooklyn Tech, Boys High and Lafayette.

In the last game of the season Madison came from behind in the second half on touchdowns by "Red" White and Larry Weiss to beat a favored Lincoln eleven for the first time in ten years. This game was not only one of the best comebacks ever displayed by a Madison team but was also one of the most exciting games ever to be played by the Black and Gold. As it turned out this was the last football game until 1951 when the ban on extra-curricular activities was lifted.

Madison opened up its 1951 season by beating Tilden 12-0 at Tilden Field. Touchdowns were scored by quarterback Hanratty and fullback NicholSEN. Another star of this first game of the season was Mark Strausberg who set up one of the touchdowns by intercepting a Tilden pass and running it back forty yards. The next encounter of the season saw an underdog Midwood team play the stronger Madison team to a 6-6 tie. Under the lights at Ebbets Field Madison beat New Utrecht for the first time in three years by the score of 19-6. In their first real test of the season to prove just how good they were, an inspired Madison team beat Far Rockaway 25-20 at Madison Field. Prior to this game Far Rockaway was undefeated and had only been scored upon once. Due to injuries to three key players Madison finished up the season by losing to Lafayette 27-6 then to Lincoln 38-0 and finally to Erasmus. The Seniors who played for the Carusomen were: Harry NicholSEN, Don Wachtell, Mark Strausberg, Sherry Postal, Ronnie Sher, Murray Gross, Marty Brownstein, Joe Lamana, Dave Ravin, Don Bender, Billy Geller, Murray Alias, Arnie Levine, Captain Stan Mazer, Fred Girsky, Les Wallace and Meyer Smukler.

TENNIS

During the past two years, due to the extra-curricular activity stoppage Madison has not fielded a tennis team. However, this spring once again the Black and Gold netmen will attempt to live up to the reputation that previous Madison tennis teams have built. Through the years Madison has consistently turned out tennis teams that have ranked with the best in the borough. Such fine stars as Gene Wishod, Sandy Bronster, and more recently Don Liebers and Jimmy Finkelstein have upheld the Madison tradition of powerful tennis teams.

This season also, Madison will have a fine aggregation. Although there are no super stars of the Liebers calibre, we will have a strong, well-rounded outfit. The team will be led by Bob Berman, a fine and very steady player, with an excellent service. The other outstanding netmen are Mike Appelbaum, a very speedy performer, with a knack of covering the whole court, and Marty Silfin and Bob Goodman, two very capable, steady performers. Other members of the team include Mike Weber, Steve Goldfinger, Joel Braverman, and Marty Aranow of basketball team fame.

The squad is ably coached by Mr. Samuel Schindler, who is also chairman of the Physical Education Department.

Rival teams in the P.S.A.L. league include Brooklyn Tech, and such traditional rivals as Midwood and Erasmus.

So, this year, once again look for Madison to field a top notch tennis team.

BOWLING

The past few years have seen numerous Madisonians flocking to see most of Madison's athletic teams in action. One of the best, though, has been sadly neglected. Probably no team has compiled as admirable a record as the keglers. Yet, few Quentin Roaders even know of their existence.

In 1950 the team rolled up an impressive record, and in doing so emerged city champions. The squad was built around Bill Waller, Norm Weiner, Artie Huberfield, and Ronnie Cooney. A remarkable feature of the team was that all the starters pitched with their left hands. They were reputed to be one of the best lefty teams in the country.

This year looks to be another big one for the bowlers. Led by Captain Murray Goldstein, co-captain Phil Goldberg, Jerry Fleisig, Andy Mayer, Harvey Greenfield, and Milt Bernstein, the team has outscored Erasmus, Fort Hamilton and Lincoln. Madison has another championship team of keglers.

Mr. Sternberg, coach of the squad, is enthusiastic about all of the boys. He deserves a great deal of credit, as his bowlers have given Madison a fine name in athletics.

BASEBALL

Departing seniors have but few memories of Madison baseball successes, regardless of the team's excellent history. For the past two years the team has remained unorganized due to the stoppage of extra-curricular sports. Some may recall however the thrilling 1949 season. That year saw the Wundermen just miss the Borough championship, finishing the season with a 12 and 1 record. Frank Torre, star of the '49 team was to have played triple A ball this season after an excellent year with Denver of the Western League, but at present he is in the army.

In past years Madison has received one city title and seven boro championships, placing at least second or third in every other year.

This season, Coach Artie Wunderlich has high hopes for a championship. Madison stars include team co-captains Sid Kraus at shortstop and Billy Pappas, catcher, for whom he predicts great futures. Other senior representatives include Bill Gurton, Mike Diteresi, Bobby Britton, Red Blitzstein, Fred Lane and Shelly Lipson.

It is more than possible that this year's addition to Madison's baseball history will continue to uphold the reputation established throughout the years.

HONOR GIRLS

When Miss Marjorie Marshall, a former Madisonian, became a member of the Physical Education Department in 1936, there was a dearth of athletic activities for girls. Recognizing this, Miss Marshall organized the Honor Girls Sports Society. In 1938 it came under the capable direction of Miss Adele B. Tebbe, when Miss Marshall retired in favor of marriage.

An Honor Girl is distinguishable by her special uniform, pin, sweater and emblem. Even if she had no special uniform, it would be easy to spot an honor girl by her swiftiness at racing, her timing at basketball, her deftness and power at punchball and baseball, and her teamwork and good sportsmanship at volleyball.

Each term the Honor Girls organizations of all the high schools send representatives for a joint Play Day. When one sees a hundred or so girls from different schools playing with and competing against each other in complete harmony and friendship, the value of the teaching and understanding, of good sportsmanship are true examples of the ancient motto — A sound mind in a sound body.

The officers of Honor Girls this term are: President Jane Weber, Vice President Barbara Hermann, Secretary Harriet Dienstag, and Treasurer Astrid Akins.

THE GREATEST SING ON EARTH

"Ladies and Gentlemen!" You say you're not satisfied, you say you want more for your money. Well, step right up and I'll tell you what I'm gonna do.

I'm gonna give you laughs, excitement, drama, suspense, music, dancing, pretty girls and dashing men.

It's colossal, it's sensational, it's stupendous, it's the "Greatest Show on Earth", it's the "Madison Sing!"

What!! You say you're still not satisfied, you say you want to know more. Okay, okay, don't crowd, don't shove, there's room, there's room for all.

Imagine hushed voices, dimmed lights, all of a sudden! a spotlight, the curtain opens. The Sing begins.

First we see the Freshmen, they're nervous, unsteady, not sure of themselves. They start their act, the audience enjoys it, they applaud, they like it — But — will they win?

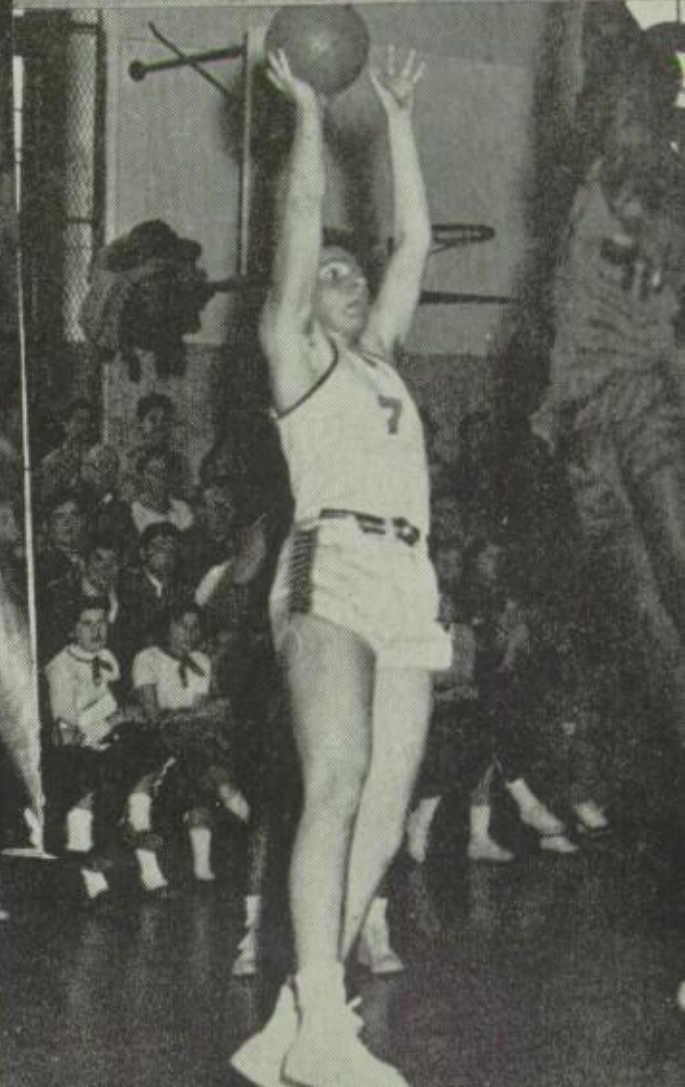

Next on stage come the Sophomores. Still uncertain, yet with a feeling of hope. The audience applauds once again, the children shriek with excitement. The curtain closes. Will they win?

Then come the Juniors, their steps are sure and steady. "Oh we'll win, we have it in the bag." By now the audience realizes that the competition is getting closer. Will they win?

The Theatre is hushed once more. "Who comes next?" cries a shrill voice from the balcony. "Why, it's the Seniors" the crowd yells back. And on they come, proud, confident, their heads held high. An air of sophistication envelops the audience.

The Sing ends, the curtain closes. The audience is tense as they await the decision of the judges.

"Who's gonna win," cries the barker. "You say you wanna know?" "Yes!" screams the anxious crowd. "Then step up folks and buy your tickets. Come one, come all, come to the 'Greatest Show on Earth.' Come to the Madison Sing."

STARRING ROLES

It is only fair to give curtain calls to those who did the most to make our cast one of the best that ever graduated from Madison. Our deepest thanks to:

The S.G.O. Directors — Stan Komaroff, Bill Gurton, Fred Lane, Marty Rosenthal, Lea Miller, Stan Becker, and Bob Erichson for two terrific S.G.O. administrations.

The Assistant Directors — Gene Sommer, Shelly Lipson, Janie Shapiro, and Adrienne Schumitsky for governing our senior class.

Our chief coach — Judi Shimansky, Westinghouse Scholarship winner and possessor of the highest average in Madison's history, for tutoring in non-euclidian geometry.

Also thanks to the roles played by Fred Lane, championship basketball team captain, Stan Mazer, football captain, Sid Krause, baseball captain, and Judi Shimansky and Norm Kessner, co-captains of the math team.

Editors of Madison Varsity, Messrs. Bob Haselkorn, Joel Dropkin, Ralph Shapiro, Mal Newman, and Bob Erichson and Mademoiselles Lee Sachnoff, Mimi Fishman, and Abby Avin for full coverage.

The Script Writers Jerry Reinert, Laura Joan Puser, Hilda Cohen, Betty Jane Seligman, Bob Erichson, Judy Klein, Saul Levy and Joel Hurley, for direction and production of the Log.

Musical score conducted and written by Bill Gurton, Steve Goldfinger, Lea Miller, Laura Joan Puser for their hard work towards a whing ding sing.

Our Prodigies from the Professional Art School — Marty Brownstein, Sue Chaisin, and Judi Shimansky for leading Arista.

The Bouncers — Mike Weinberger, Ronnie Cooperman, Fred Lippman, Arnie Kopelson, Ruth Posen, and Rose Gregory for being able to shut up the Go-Getters at their meetings.

The stand by Picket Line Bob Goodman, Gene Sommer, Lea Miller, Adrienne Schumitsky, Janie Shapiro, and Sue Chaisin for doing the same with Boosters.

Our own Captain of the ushers, Karl Lazarowitz for majoring the Service League Farce.

The Playwrite editors Stu Becker and Claire Satin for confusing us with the Madisonian.

And last but not least our mob scene consisting of S.G.O. commissioners and other oddities including Barbara Berke, Norman Brand, Marty Brownstein, Artie Frank, Stuart Frank, Sonny Gertzog, Steve Goldfinger, Ira Kaplan, Arnie Kopelson, Ruth Posen, Gene Sommer, Sid Tepper, Barry Wasserman and Mike Weinberger. And for the finale to so many supporting players who made our four act performance so thoroughly enjoyable and so well remembered.

We do bequeath

In June of 1952 A.D.

Devoid of malice and conscience free;

We the graduates feel inclined,

To give to those we leave behind

Good Will! and so we thus present

Our final will and testament.

To Mr. Brook — A hot water bottle to melt his cold, cold heart.

To Mrs. Quinn — A promise from all the girls to be good sweethearts, wives, and mothers.

To Mr. Moskowitz — A basketball with a magnet in it.

To Mrs. Nurnberg — A medal!

To Mrs. Ford — An O'Cedar sponge mop.

To Mr. Tobin — A 28 hour day.

To Mr. Newfield — Palm trees in the hall and tortillas in the lunchroom.

To Mrs. Weiss — A peppermint life saver.

To Mrs. Whitlock — More room in the Log office.

To Mr. Orshan — A right angle.

To Mr. Nagler — An overgrown microscope.

To Mr. Storch — A tack on every seat so that the students will "rise and face the class."

To Miss Gold — Denise Darcel's television contract.

To the Girls' powder room — We leave some ash trays.

To Mr. Cohen — Sam Levinson's TV contract.

To Mr. Bernstein — $20,000 to start a newspaper.

To Miss Belanger — A Parisian in America.

To Miss Salit — All the Gold she can take.

To the Elevator Operators — Escalators.

To Miss Zehner — Thanks from all the girls who don't know you.

THANATOPSIS MADISONIA SENIORA

(With apologies to William Cullen Bryant)

To him who in the love of Madison holds
Communion with her visible forms, she speaks
A various language — for his gayer hours
There are scrawlings upon the bathroom walls,
Done with a smile and eloquence of beauty,
Into his darker musings, with a mild and healing
Sympathy, come classmates who, like him
Received their forty-fives in le Regent de Francais.
When thoughts of the last bitter hour come like a blight
Over thy spirit, and the seventh period will seemingly never end,
Go forth, under the open roof, and list
To Levy's teachings, while from all around —
Sulfuric and hydrochloric, and the depths of acetic
Comes a still (?) voice —
Yet a few more days and thee
The all-beholding Newfield shall see no more
In all his course; nor in the cold detention hall
Where thy pale form was laid with many tears,
Nor in the embrace of Alexander, shall exist thy image.
Hot plates, that nourished thee, shall stunt
Thy growth, and imprison thee; and surrendering up
Thy individual being, shalt thou go
To mix forever with chow mein,
To be a brother to the insensible guard,
And to the sluggish pie, which the rude cashier
Turns with a fork and spits upon, Mr. Block
Shall send his boots a bread, and pierce its mold.

Yet not to thine eternal happiness
Shalt thou graduate alone, nor couldst thou wish
Entrance with more magnificence. Thou shalt march through
With classmates of the infant mind — with S.G.O. wheels,
The powerful of the school — the Arista, Honor girls,
Fair forms, and hoary seers of ages past.

Judy Coplon and Cal Abrams. The teachers,
Rock-ribbed and ancient as the sun — the students
Stretching in thoughtless noisiness before them.
The venerable service league — Boosters that move
In majesty, and the complaining Mr. Bernstein
Who loves the color green; and poured around
The lunchrooms' gray and melancholy waste —
Are but the solemn decorations all,
Of the great tomb of adolescents. The Golden Tornado,
The referees, and the infinitesimal host of spectators
Are whining in the sad results of the Lincoln game
Through the sudden lapse of ability. All that
Tread the school are but a handful to the tribes
That slumber in its classrooms. Take the flings
Of any senior, Pierce through the late squad,
Or lose thyself in the S.G.O. office
Where rolls the mighty Go-Getter, and hears no sound
Save his own bellowing — Yet the sleep remains.
And millions in those classrooms, since first
The school began, have laid themselves down
In their fast sleep — they feign dead there alone.

So thou shalt graduate to rest, and what if thou
Withdraw in silence from thy classmates. All that
Breathe will share the same destiny. The gay will laugh
When thou art gone, the solemn brood of care
Plod on, and each, as before will chase
His favorite brunette, yet all these shall leave
Their mirth and employments, and shall come to Brooklyn College with thee. As the long pain
Of ages glides away, the Madison Pen,
Once a freshie in schools green sting, and he graduates
On the strength of age alone, moron and flayed,
The speechless Newfield and gray-haired faculty
Shall be gathered one by one at his side
To gape at him and stare.

So study, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which never moves,
At Mr. Tobin's desk, where each shall take
His application with a silent prayer on breath.
Thou go not, like the quarry-slave at night
Scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering reeler, approach thy seat
And lie down to pleasant screams.

STEPHEN E. GOLDFINGER

FAREWELL

The curtain has gone down and the actors file off in search of new plays listening to the gentle patter of their own applause. We have been the stars, and the tight mouthed straight men, we have been the leading ladies decked out in tight breast-cupped sweaters, we have been the clowns giggling at ourselves behind our make-up. We have been the audience, too, and that is why our play has been unique, we have been the critics and the actors and the directors but more important, we have been the scene painters. For a couple of thousand moments our jokes, our characters and tiny idiosyncrasies of our personalities have wielded the brush. The brush is dry. But we will never be able to wash all the paint out of our hair.

We have stumbled on to each other, we have dragged something out of each other, you and I, but what we have taken away we have put back. I have learned that when you combine hydrogen with oxygen you get water. But I have unlearned more. When we came we knew a great deal. But as Madison surrounded us and overwhelmed us we found that we knew very little. And as the years went on we knew less and less, until we are about to graduate, we know nothing. This is our education. . . .

A STUDENT: "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" (in a hazy voice). "Listen to my sentimental claptrap and watch the tears stream from my bloodshot soul, 'Auld Lang Syne' and hip hip dear old Madison. I'm glad to get out. So long, friends, and wave to me when you see me come up success's great big fat ladder. The next play's gonna have the longest run. Players: me. Money: why sure. I'll write you a letter."

STUDENT II: "It's one of those rare moments when you get out of a bathtub and feel very clean and starched. It's one of those moments when you feel like a crisp new dollar waiting to be spent. Yes, it started out as a part, but when I walk away from the stage I'll still be acting it, and it won't be a part any more."

All sizes and shapes — big ones, fat ones, dumb ones, "brains," actors, critics, directors — all leaving their shiny footprints on the stage, all with paint on their hair. Pat your son on the back, shake hands with your brother and take him home. Just remember that when you look in his eyes you are seeing part of me. Part of his smile, part of the way he walks, part of the way he speaks belongs to me and eight hundred other Madisonians.

THE LOG

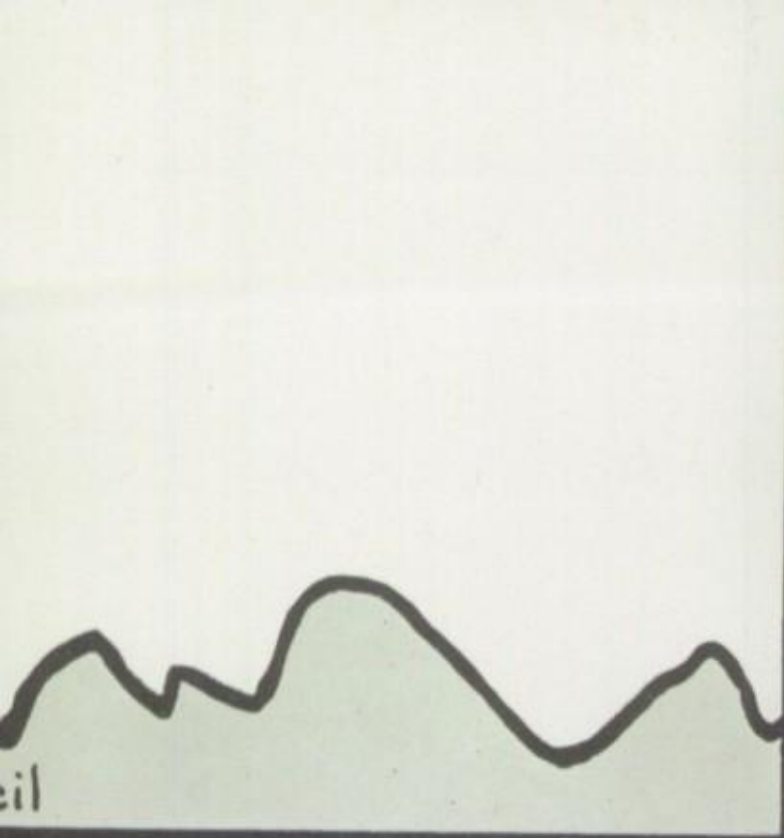

High up on the fifth floor, enjoying a location where they can look down on all the rest of the school, sit the editors of the Senior Log. Their job is not easy. In fact, it is extremely difficult to concentrate on tic tac toe while buried under veritable mountains of old manuscript, used flashbulbs, Mr. Big wrappers, back Highways, and abandoned copies of "Portrait of the Artist". In fact, conditions got so bad that they had to remove approximately twelve tons of this garbage just to have a clearing in which to sleep. This seems rather slanderous, but after all, those editors who couldn't figure out tic tac toe had to have something to do besides sign autographs for envious freshies.

Faculty advisor to the Log is Mrs. Koltun who directs an army of editors, who directs scores of associate editors who direct countless vice-editors who in turn, direct me. Attention Joan!!!

About two hours before the deadline, the office suddenly becomes alive. Editors roll out of desk drawers, associates squirm out of "Trigonometric Functions of Tic Tac Toe" books, and the Editor-in-Chief drops in to give them all a little pep talk backed up by threats of suspension. Slowly they warm up to their momentous task. After two hours of deliberation, they decide to call their publication "The Log". The spelling editor dictates it to the writing editor who puts it down on paper and hands it to the mailing editor, and the publisher joyously receives it the next day. He is supremely happy because he is being paid to print so little.

Two weeks later the late copy arrives at his office. He cursingly sets to work and after 5,012 hours of constant toil he sends off the last copy and falls dead on the spot. The Log has a consistent average of two printers per year. It is no wonder that they receive four pages of ads from the New York Association of Funeral Parlors.
